Question: Financially, for me now this is a very frightening period. And instead of the usual panic that I feel - and in the past when faced with a situation like this, I used to get frightened by just the idea of lack of abundance - and now that I am experiencing it more on a daily basis I find that my panic and fear has been replaced by a peacefulness and a stillness. I don't know if that is a function of the spirit of courage, the fact that I really understand that everything is really okay and everything is taken care of, but whatever it is, it's not what I expected it to be. I really expected this to be my flip-out time. And it turned out to be kind of a beautiful experience, and I'm enjoying it. And I know that the angels at times teach through adversity.

One of the lessons that I have learned has been my friendship with [a woman with AIDS] and watching how she handles what I considered to be an unnatural human burden. So I'm enjoying this challenge - I think. But I do understand and feel the terrors that - my usual panic has been replaced with something that money couldn't buy even if I had it.

Answer: Well stated. Yes, yes, your perception of peacefulness as an aspect of personal spiritual growth is most accurate. Why attribute it to a Angels when you have done the work yourself?

Question: Well, I've killed so many bugs I want to give credit where credit is due. [Laughter.] You know come judgment I get a little bit of leeway.

Answer: Even bugs have bad luck. [More laughter.]

Question: I just need to rearrange the financial aspects of my life. They are such a burden and pressure.

Answer: Every adverse event that occurs during your universe existence has a lesson in it for you, and part of your mission is to find those lessons. At times they are readily apparent, and at other times you must dig deeply and search hard for meaning. But it will emerge if you are assiduous in your search.

Question: I'd just like it to change. I ask for help from the other side, just in terms of maybe a bit more strength or something to do what I need to do to clean up my life. Sometimes I just feel like I don't have it all by myself to balance that cheque-book or to do those things. Could I have some inspiration, please?

Answer: We ascendant mortals are much esteemed throughout the universes for our great capacity to adapt to changing circumstances, a necessary quality to have in order to survive. And most survive. Non-survival is a very, very rare event. Change is an inevitable fact of existence and is multiplied by many orders of magnitude when one is created imperfect. From the moment that you came into being you have been undergoing change with every fragment of time that has passed. As you read to this lesson you are changing. It is an inevitable and irreversible process. And we call ourselves ascendant because as we change we also ascend simultaneously. There is no turning back.

The change that you seek is difficult to measure by your standard physical means, for you cannot put it on a yardstick, or hold it in your hands, or leave an impression on a film with it. It is measured instead in terms of peacefulness, confidence, awareness, that ability to be in the world but not of it, joy in the creations of the Father that abound so wonderfully on your planet. That is how you can discern the change within. And also by an increasing awareness to the promptings of your Thought Adjuster, which you, in particular, are very well attuned to.

Adversity creates determination, tests your resolve, measures how deep your desire

Amanson on Adversity

"Adversity" is the only means of creating an experienced end, polishing a personality that has been, shall we say, battle tested.

Adversity creates determination, tests your resolve, measures how deep your desire for that which you declare you are determined to achieve. No one truly appreciates what has been too easily acquired. It is only after a series of setbacks and the person has been prepared, ripened, to take full advantage of their reward that the prize is fully appreciated.

Adversity comes with the territory, all part of the system. It seems to originate randomly from without but adversity contains the lessons — the prepared lessons — you will have to meet in order to bring your prize home. The desire, the plan, the execution (thought, word, and deed) and the adversity they will face were all born at the same moment.

Adverse conditions are as much a part of the scenario as the initial desire. It's all one. And the tougher the adversity the more power is born in the person who overcomes it. It is a game, of sorts. At least it benefits a person to approach it that way, in that spirit. The Oneness pervades all. The Oneness is all — so there's really no need to bemoan what is essentially a complete package. It is your gift to face snags, hitches, bumps in the road, and place yourself in a position of problem solving. It exercises your mind, exercises your character, and in its deepest recesses (and usually in the direst circumstances), it will force you to call on the unseen realm, that Spirit connection within a person that in turn connects directly to the hub of origination — where all creation originates — affecting the situation at its point of origin, before adversities became adversities.

It is this last lesson for which we can be most grateful. Grateful to, and for, Adversity.
