The Spirit Realm is our topic tonight and its ramifications are immense. The Spirit Realm is the beginning of all things material. There is nothing that does not have its origin in Spirit. Not rocks, not trees; none of what seems a purely physical phenomenon would have existence without first the domain of Spirit, from which all things spring.

So you ask me about the Spirit Realm and its power, where it fits into a material world seemingly adrift on its own, at the mercy of random events and what seems a diminishing consciousness on the part of the people involved in those events. I can assure you that above and beyond the world of cacophony and mayhem you're witnessing of late, the Spirit world stands ever vigilant with an eye on the stream of events unfolding. Can it (the Spirit Realm) interfere? No. But you can - you can force the Spirit world's hand; you can set the working parts in motion from within this unseen realm, direct them to apply Spirit values and layers of Light which would otherwise - because of man's absolutely sacrosanct free will - be forced to sit unutilized on the sidelines. But when Light is harnessed and [consciously] placed in a position of perfect compliment to an otherwise loveless area of being, the Spirit Realm can then transform the situation - any situation - and render it fruitful, even though, to the naked eye and for the present time, it seems dark and hopeless.

When the Spirit Realm is given room to breathe it will show itself a mighty partner in the affairs of Man. But it must be consciously brought to bear, otherwise things tend to drift. Not forever ultimately, for all things are within the purview of Spirit, but the lesser habits of the human animal, without the guidance of its Spirit partner, will dig a hole for itself that only Spirit can bring to a halt. When man, with his material tendencies, partners with the Spirit Realm all things are possible.

But your question is about actively seeking out (diving into) this dimension of Spirit and applying it to this or that situation for the good of the whole. Yes, the bringing of Spirit Essence to troubled situations as they arise on your world is what is missing from much of what you see. Is this prayer? Yes, but it is not the usual 'asking', what is considered the conventional process of prayer. No, this 'prayer' is a command, a conscious setting-to; bringing Light to a situation in need and applying it, just as one would apply any salve to an infected wound.

Some will ask, "Is this all just in our heads?" No, although it is accomplished through the medium of Mind, which connects the Heart's intention to Spirit frequency, and upon those frequencies (which are spirit) your Loved-based intention is brought to bear on the situation in question. All unseen. ("They never knew what hit 'em!") Spirit has been recruited and put into action. And Spirit knows what to do. You request its help, point it in the direction you would have it go and allow it to do what Spirit does. You have done your part. Spirit has now been given permission to take what had been a very parched atmosphere and transform it with the Water of Life. And you, knowing the situation is in good hands, may now look elsewhere and call out to your invisible colleagues, "Next!"

Do it! Charge these abhorrent situations with the electricity of Love. It is unseen but it is transformative. How could it not be? Circumstances are being altered from their place of origin. All things comes from Spirit. You're just reminding the situation that this is so.
