Team Effort

Science, technology, resources, investment, work, and experience all combine to build essential systems.

The Goal

The ultimate goal of the Covenant is to lead mankind to the mastery of the planetary jurisdictions of soil, land, sea and air. Once that is successfully accomplished our planet will be assigned the status of Light and Life, meaning that mankind will have achieved a stable and durable balance between his needs and the needs of the planet, thereby ensuring the indefinite survival of both.

Scientifically and technologically we are now sufficiently advanced, but we are still very deficient in the areas of unity, ethics, finance, governance, education and true religion. We also continue to be plagued by disease, degeneracy, war and crime.

There are 8 major collective building blocks of civilisation being built on top of the personal and individual spiritual Covenant foundation, all having the same ultimate goals of achieving durable unity and stability, globally. The progress of each is displayed in the bar graph below.

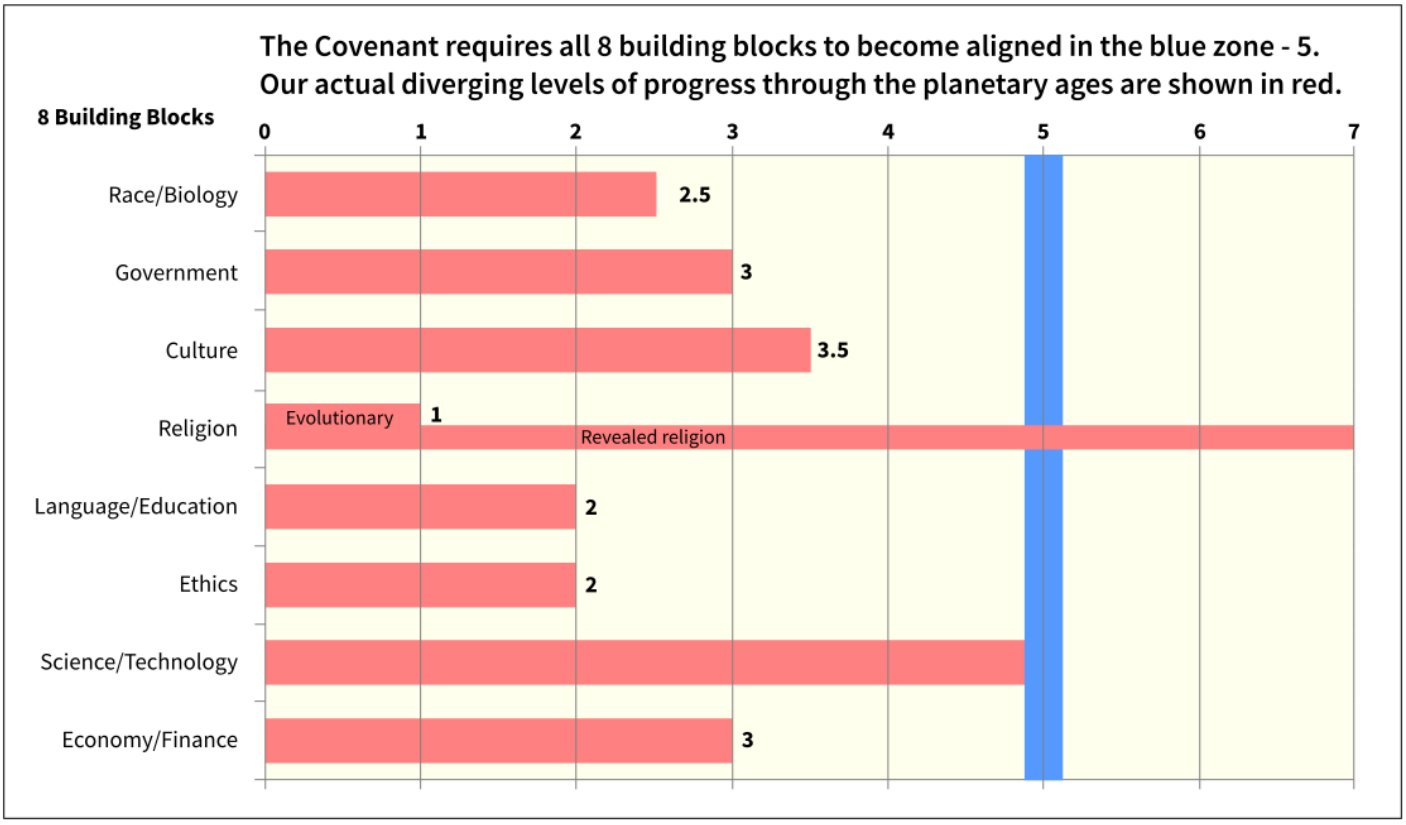
Earth is now entering its 5th planetary age



The Full Effect

When we combine time and space with life and purpose we get growth through: conception, action, and collective work; resulting in religion, science, and philosophy.

Man's greatest purpose is then achieved when philosophy, religion, and science are welded into a meaningful unity by the conjoined action of wisdom, faith, and experience.

When man chooses, individually, of his own personal free will, to harmonize his greatest purpose with the will of his Creator, through the conjoined action of wisdom, faith, and experience, a covenant comes to life.

When mankind chooses, collectively, to pay homage to the will of the Creator through philosophy, religion, and science, constructs (systems) are built for enabling and guiding the collective goals, visions and purpose.
